

DISRUPTIVE SYMBIOSIS: A Story of Science, Art, & Disability

A talk by Sarah Waldis '16 & Lindsey Lopes '16

Tuesday, April 19 @ 4:30-5:30pm
Hilles 108, KINSC - Haverford College

Join us for a presentation followed by a short discussion on disability studies, art, & science education!

As a part of Disability Awareness Month, Lindsey & Sarah, senior Biology majors, will present a story of their experiences with the BioArt Project – a collaboration between Haverford & Bryn Mawr students enrolled in Critical Disability Studies: Theory and Practice & local artists working at the Center for Creative Works.

RSVP to the Facebook event here! facebook.com/events/1588438068149948/

Questions? Need access info?
llopes@haverford.edu or swaldis@haverford.edu

Photo by Caleb Eckert '17